The LEGEND

January

1948

Foreword

WHEN memories of the happy times and friends we make at Weequahic become dulled by adult responsibility, we, of the yearbook staff, sincerely hope that this book may furnish many pleasant reminiscences of our school years. For the staff, the task of assembling the material which comprises the book was an enjoyable one. That it may give equal enjoyment to all who thumb its pages is the sincere wish of those who are responsible for its publication.

Sadie Z. Rous

Dedication

THE Class of January 1948 is fortunate in having as grade adviser Mrs. Sadie Z. Rous, whose kindly influence and generous counsel have guided us for four years. During our stay at Weequahic, she has willingly extended help and sympathy to those who needed it. Therefore, it is to Mrs. Rous with affection and gratitude that we dedicate this Legend.

Max J. Herzberg

Message from the Principal

There's an undue tendency toward pessimism these days. It may be true, as some gloomy people think, that within a few years the only inhabitants left on the face of the earth will be living in caves, or even that the earth itself will disappear in a chain reaction. But it doesn't seem likely. At any rate, you can in the meantime feel very cheerful about being citizens of the greatest of all nations, where by the grace of God food is plentiful and gainful employment the highest in our history. We enjoy, moreover, the blessing of a free government where men may speak and write freely, where the individual citizen need not fear the cruel demands of a totalitarian tyranny, and where each man's program in the world still depends on his own efforts and desires. Make thankful use of your opportunities and blessings as Americans.

The Torch

Here is the Torch, that blazing Guide of Youth;
The symbol of our dreams still burning bright!
It once led us upon the Path of truth.
We pass it on to you who need its light.
Once, not so long ago, with arms outstretched
We took it from the grasp of those now gone.
We vowed the flame they kindled would not die.
We vowed the work they did we'd carry on.
At first our hands grew tired in their hold,
Our falt'ring feet would stumble as they stepped.
But now our steps are quick and neat and sure;
Our vows are whole, our covenant is kept.
Look at the Torch! Its lapping tongue of red
Proclaims its strength from out its very core!
That is the flame we kindled, watched and fed
Until it burned more brightly than before.
The fuel it burned was aspiration high,
We kindled that great fire in Honor's name,
Ambition kept its watch both night and day.
Behold—the Torch that wrote our deeds in flame
Now other hands stretch out to take their Guide,
And others take the vows to make it grow.
We know, though empty hands are at each side,
That none of us will ever let it go.
For with each deed or daily task well done,
As proudly in the world we take our part,
A glow will be reflected on each face—
An age-old Torch rekindled in each heart.

Athletic Awards

THE Class of January '48 presents the graduates of Weequahic's five varsity teams: Football, Baseball, Basketball, Track and Cross Country.

Football, being the most popular sport participated in by our school, presents an opportunity for future stars to distinguish themselves on the gridiron. Our basketball squad for the past four years had been the high spot in Weequahic's interscholastic athletics. Many awards, won by our junior and senior track and cross-country teams, will be well remembered by our classmates. Our hard playing and high-spirited baseball team has upheld the fine name of our school. In this way the senior class is well represented by varsity "W's".

Individual Stars

Ed Berman, captain of our track and cross-country teams, a fast, long-winded runner, piled up an enormous number of points to aid our teams. Captain Fred Rosenberg, aggressive all-city fullback, was the main cog in our football machine. Our only representative on the baseball nine was hard-hitting Al Cohn who covered right field. Seymour Wexler has received deserved honors in three sports, Football, Basketball and Track.

Ken Brookman and Mel Gietter were hard-charging guards who would be valuable additions to any football team. Hurdler on the track team and half-back in football, Lenny Cohen proved himself to be fast and dependable in varsity athletics. Sy Weiss was the field general of the football squad. Marv Bromberg was a center whose aggressive playing stopped many an enemy line plunge. In the opinion of the players, head manager Fred Meyers, and his assistant, Marty Schwartz, were important assets to the football team.

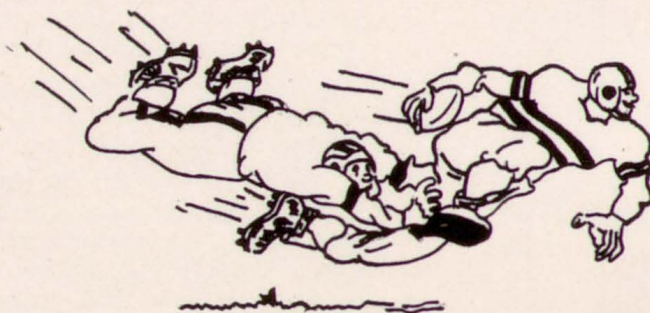

JUST AS a Weequahic athlete has a "W" looming up as his goal, our girls are awarded letters for outstanding gym work. These awards come after a girl has obtained one thousand points. Credit toward the points is given each term for good gym work, a perfect attendance record, and participation in after school athletic clubs. The girls' goal goes beyond this letter, however, for when fifteen hundred points have been accumulated, the Weequahic girl proudly accepts a gold pin for excellent gym work. Thus, with the help of this award system, Weequahic encourages physical fitness and good sportsmanship in its girls.

These are the girls in the Class of January, 1948 who have won their letters: Marcia Landau, Judy Posner, Ruth Karp, Ann Gorewitz, Rita Jacobson, Gilda Brodsky, Rosalyn Tauber and Lorraine Ford.

GIRLS' LETTER WINNERS

Hilltop Civilization

HEARTS were gay back in February 1944, when the doors of Weequahic Annex opened wide to welcome two hundred and thirty, new wide-eyed Freshmen. The halls resounded with their footsteps and laughter. In their eagerness to become "part of the school," they procured everything from elevator passes to bathing lockers, and they gazed with intense admiration at the superior seniors. Waste no pity upon them, however, for now, four years later, they have become the lofty seniors, and it is they who attempt to outwit poor trusting freshmen. It seems that as long as the wigwam stands on the hill, and as long as a sense of humor lingers in the hearts of the students, these practical jokes will be played.

It didn't take the Freshmen long to get acquainted with each other, and the Spring Dance helped to strengthen these friendships, but study problems weren't as easily solved. At first, as newcomers, we could hardly move without wincing from the pain of a new gym exercise, and our nights were tormented with visions of Latin sentences which could not be translated. By the time of the great migration to the main building, however, we had our subjects well in hand, and our assurance was only slightly dimmed by the realization that we were again newcomers.

Soon we glided through our subjects with such ease, and realized that A's were such common things, that several students worked for F's just to be different. Soon, too, we regained our self-confidence, and walked through the halls with heads held high, for in 3B we had our first class officers.

Colorful signs in the lunchrooms and classrooms proclaimed the candidates, and had we been campaigning for the President of the United States, we couldn't have been more enthusiastic. The class waited anxiously for the election returns, and we beamed with satisfaction after hearing that Herbie Iris was the President, Donald Meisner, Vice President, Marcia Landau, Secretary, and Leonard Sternbach, Treasurer.

The announcement of a new state law requiring each student to take a two-year course in American History wasn't exactly welcomed at first. Soon, however, even history haters began to admit grudgingly admit that the course wouldn't tax their strength too greatly, and that they might accidentally learn something in the class.

Our two officers, Herbie Iris and Lenny Sternbach ran for a second term in 3A, and won again, while the class elected Diane Newmark for Vice President and Sara Michael for Secretary. This was the term of our Roller-Skating party. Dreamland Arena was crowded with laughing young people, and even the inexperienced skaters were undaunted although they spent most of their time on the floor. The gaiety of the music, the clink of the skates, and the colorful costumes of the skaters made us unwilling to leave for home.

February saw us in our senior year looking with scorn at the new 2B's. Again the flamboyant campaigns for election, but the only change in the officers was Edward as Vice President. Under the supervision of Miss O'Connor, the 4B's sponsored the 4B-4A Hop on May 2nd. There was a great deal of hurried activity as we decorated the girl's lower gym, but the end justified the means. The drab gym had been transformed into a kind of fairyland by the addition of a May-Pole replete with gay-colored streamers. Bobbing balloons adorned the sides and ceiling of the gym, and the dancers swayed to and fro to the strains of Sheldon Wolf's music. Presiding over the Hop as M. C. Fred Meyers put even Bob Hope to shame.

The auditorium's darkness, broken only by the bright light of the torch, concealed the expressions of the 4B's and the 4A's at the Torch Day ceremony in June. Only the most observant guests could see the envious glances the 4B's darted at the 4A's, and the somewhat wistful glances given in return. The torch was accepted by Herbie Iris, and so another class said farewell to Weequahic.

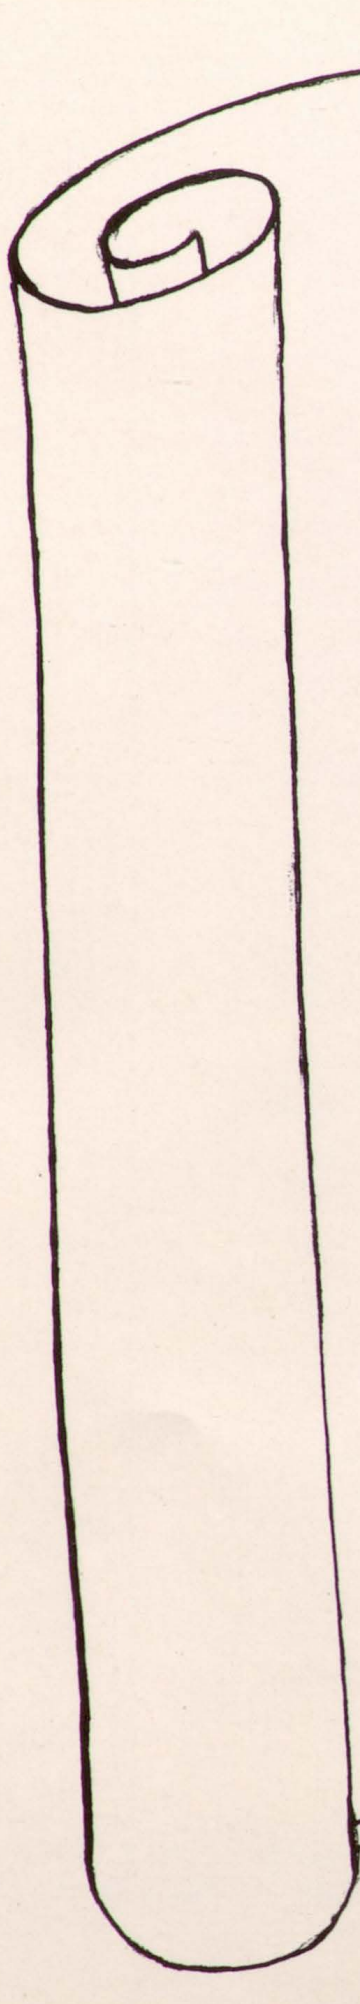

Then, we were the 4A's, masters of the school, even though we didn't have time to enjoy our authority. Members of the Legend Literary Staff racked their brains in search of inspiration for creative writing, and the high-pressure salesmen of the Advertising Staff wearily sought ads. More than one person reproached himself bitterly for the poor marks of his high school years, and waited impatiently for news of a college's acceptance of his application. "School is all right," complained the seniors, "but why did we have to let everything go until the last minute?"

The announcement of the Senior prom dispelled our gloom, and with the distribution of Prom bids, all the boys straightened their ties, squared their shoulders, and asked their best girls to come. The girls, in turn, smiled their sweetest smiles, and charmed the boys into taking them.

The "Winter Fiesta" lived up to its name, for the crisp sweet-smelling outdoors was brought into Weequahic. Deep green Christmas trees decorated with shining balls and glittering tinsel, and soft white snow covered with jagged icicles gave us a Winter Wonderland. In the charm of the moment, couples glided over the floor to the accompaniment of Bob Bermingham's orchestra.

On January 7, it was our turn to say goodbye to the school, and the torch was now passed to the 4B president, George Kaye. That torch seemed to stand for all the memories we had of Weequahic. We could see in it the endless homework, the sagamores, the crowded lunchroom, and we could also see all the good times we had had with friends and with teachers. It seemed strange now to see the torch given away; for it was as if a part of our lives were given away with it.

On January 21, the auditorium was crowded with exultant parents and friends. Mothers and fathers anxiously searched the faces of the graduates for their offspring, and then settled back with a sigh as they caught sight of them. The graduates themselves smiled shyly, aware of the new responsibility which lay in store for them, and yet proud of the attention focused upon them. As we left the auditorium with the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" still ringing in our ears, we felt the loneliness of the final parting, but knew in our hearts the spirit of Weequahic would remain with us forever, to guide us through the uncertain years ahead.

Class Will

BE IT known to any and all who may have the time and energy to peruse this instrument of law that we, the graduating Class of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, being of supposedly sound mind and body, hereby dedicate THIS, our last will and testament, to posterity.

To the hordes of naive Freshmen, we leave the freshly painted halls, the crowded lunchroom, and the friendly, helping hands of the faculty at the Annex. To the Sophomores, we leave sundry elevator and escalator (when installed) passes, plus any and all hall and locker permits. To the Sophomores, we also leave the confusion of the UP stairways marked DOWN and the DOWN stairways marked UP. To the Juniors, we leave the trial of collecting dues, and other solicitations of MONEY. To the Seniors, we leave experiences of Torch Day and Commencement.

To the Faculty, we leave the memories of our smiling faces, and the happiness they must feel at our departure.

To those fortunate students who may get her as adviser in the future, we leave Mrs. Rous, our guiding light; and, in doing so, we apologize for the many sufferings, trials, and tribulations which we must have cost her. To those students of English who may have the privilege of attending Miss O'Connor's classes, we leave her "O'Connorisms." May they go on forever.

To the C. P.'s, we leave Miss Gerber and her guiding hand in the students' college selections. To anyone walking through the halls without a pass, we leave Mr. Bernstein's eagle eye, lion's roar, and panther's tread.

To the male gym students, we leave Mr. Schneider, Mr. Rose, Dr. Donn, and Mr. Lustig with their soft spoken words of praise, "You, 40 points off!" To those in quest of historical knowledge, we leave Mrs. Furst and her well-known words, "Report to my room at 8!" To the chemistry students, we leave the chem lab, with its permeating odors, a brand new supply of gas masks, and Mrs. Reed's, "Will you please be quiet!"

To those who follow in the footsteps of Homeroom 302, we leave Miss Undritz with the memories of her most cooperative homeroom (?)

To Mrs. Bernstein, Mr. Bucharest, and the Legend Staff, we leave a bottle of aspirin for the cure of massive headaches.

To those studious souls who desire peace and quiet (?), and various types of literature, we leave the library. To the hungry throngs of Weequahic students, we leave the hustle and bustle of the lunchroom. To those young geniuses who wish to study in an atmosphere of serenity and calm, we leave the study hall. To those night owls who wish to catch up on their sleep, we leave the assembly periods.

To all those who crave ulcers, we leave "Syd's" for hot dogs and french fries.

To the masticators of that well-known product, we leave all the used gum under the desks and seats of the study hall and classrooms.

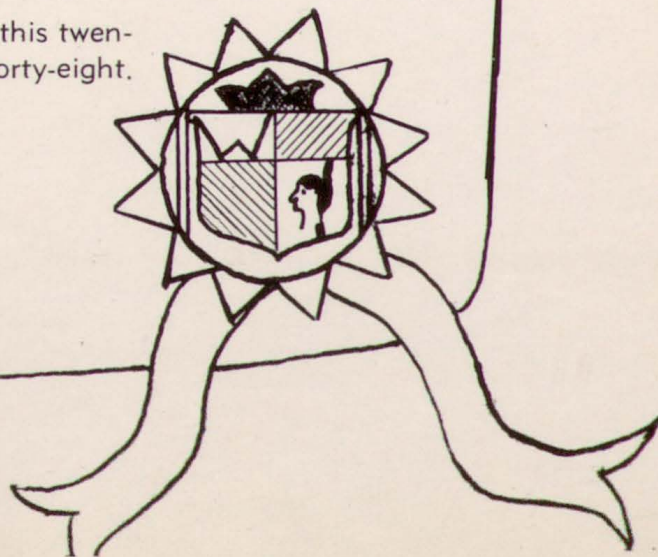

To those students who enjoy traveling in solid comfort, we leave the 14 bus.

To the many athletes who may need them, we leave the report cards of the top twenty in the class, in return for which the athletes must present to the school any and all city and state championships in any sport they may wish. To the embryo tennis and golf champions, we leave a fund which will pay their travel and practice expenses, in order that they may not be reduced to begging their parents, coach, and friends for the necessary cash.

And lastly, to our esteemed and learned graduates, we leave the wish that you all may have the best there is in life.

In witness whereof, we hereby set our hand and seal this twenty-first day of January in the year nineteen hundred and forty-eight.

THE Legend Staff would like to express its gratitude for the special assistance so graciously given by Kenneth Eisenberg, whose colorful photographs of school activities appear in this issue, and to Mr. Bernstein, who spent some time reclaiming photographs. The staff is also indebted to Mr. Schneider, for the pictures of the various teams, and above all, to Mr. Herzberg, for the invaluable suggestions and aid he has extended to the year-book staff. Especially we should like to thank the New City Printing Company, for their generous co-operation and understanding.
